SONG OF PRAISE

Minister congratulates school duo for their tribute to soldier after trip to war graves

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

TWO Haringey schoolboys with special needs were praised by a government minister last week for helping teach others about World War I with a song they wrote following a trip to the battlefields and military cemeteries of Ypres.

Jhonattan Goncalves, 15, and Zack Opere Onguende, 16, stumbled by chance across the grave of Tottenham soldier George Baxter Lowson. It was among the thousands they visited.

The students from The Vale School for pupils with special educational needs, based in Northumberland Park Community School, in Trulock Road, Tottenham, were so moved they composed a song, My Mate George, in Mr Lowson's memory and performed it on their return home.

The students, accompanied by the school's deputy head Tony Millard, travelled to Flanders, in Belgium, as part of a government-funded scheme offering state secondary schools the chance to send two pupils and a teacher to tour World War I battlefields.

The scheme aims to enable younger generations to see first hand the sacrifices which were made by British and Commonwealth soldiers.

Last week Jhonattan and Zack attended a ceremony at the House of Lords, where they were among pupils from four schools congratulated by communities and local government minister Baroness Williams for innovative projects that have created a lasting legacy and met the Legacy 110 target of sharing what they learned from the tours with 110 people.

"We were really emotional when we found the grave of George Baxter Lowson because he was from Tottenham," said Jhonattan. "We had seen thousands of graves in the course of the tours, but finding his caused us to feel very sad and made us really think about the sacrifice."

Zack added: "We felt that in some way we knew him and it was this that inspired us to write our song, My Mate George."

Baroness Williams described World War I "as important today as it was a century ago" and said that the two schoolboys from The Vale had been "vital in keeping all of our shared history alive for the next generation".

There was more good news this week for The Vale, which has secondary and primary schools located within four mainstream schools across the borough, when it retained its "good" status following an Ofsted inspection in September.

Sheltered homes almost completed

TWO new sheltered housing schemes costing £9million apiece are nearing completion.

The final brick was laid last week at Protheroe House, in Chesnut Road, Tottenham, providing 36 one bedroom and 14 two-bedroom flats.

The development replaces the former 1960s-built old people's care home which previously existed on the site.

It is being built in a partnership between Haringey Council and Season, an arm of social housing provider One Housing, and will include a medical centre.

Season is also working with the council to build 52 sheltered homes, eight specially designed for people with dementia, nearby in Pretoria Road.

"These two new facilities will provide more than 100 Haringey residents with a place to live that helps to support their independence, keeps them safe and ensures that their care needs are met," said Peter Morton, cabinet member for health and well-being.

Both schemes are scheduled to be completed in 2016, with all the properties for affordable rent.

Jailed for racist abuse

A RACE-HATE thug who grabbed an elderly man's zimmer frame and hurled it off a bus after subjecting him to anti-Muslim abuse was jailed for four months last week.

Khasif Samuels, 25, of Duffield Drive, Tottenham, was identified following a police appeal for information after they issued footage of the incident on a 149 bus in High Road, Tottenham, on Thursday, October 15.

He was sentenced at Highbury Magistrates' Court last Thursday after he had pleaded guilty at a hearing last month to racially and religiously aggravated harassment.

Landlord fined £20,000 for flouting planning rules

A ROGUE landlord who illegally converted a terraced house into nine flats, squeezing in tenants to maximise his rent income, has been fined £20,000.

Andreas Stavrou Antoniadis, 74, raked in £9,000 a month from letting the flats at the property, in Woodstock Road, Stroud Green.

The pensioner was prosecuted by Haringey Council after repeatedly ignoring demands by enforcement officers to restore the altered property to its original state.

He continued to breach planning rules despite having been prosecuted by the council three years earlier and fined £13,500 for unlawfully converting another terraced house he owned into multiple flats.

His latest offence saw Antoniadis fined the £20,000 maximum, plus £1,500 costs and charges, after pleading guilty to non-compliance of an enforcement notice at Tottenham Magistrates' Court.

He will also have to foot the bill for converting the building back to three spacious flats which meet the council's guidelines for modern, high-quality homes.

"This case showed a flagrant disregard for basic planning rules - causing misery for neighbours and putting the heritage of the area at risk," said Ali Demirci, cabinet member for planning. "This whopping fine should send a clear message to those who think they can do what they like to buildings for financial gain that we will always prosecute when we find evidence of wrongdoing."

Cycle Enfield campaigners draft in former Olympic champ

Why aren't you listening to us?

Opponents of Mini-Holland scheme blast 'flawed' consultation process

CAMPAIGNERS have reacted with fury to the council's announcement that the majority of people consulted on the Palmers Green stage of the Cycle Enfield scheme have given their backing to the plans.

Helen Osman, one of the leaders of the campaigners to stop Enfield Council from going ahead with proposals to introduce partially segregated cycle lanes along Green Lanes from Palmers Green to Enfield Town, has poured scorn on the council's claims that "the silent majority of people have spoken" in support of the scheme.

She is adamant that the very consultation process itself was flawed and is furious that cabinet member for the environment Daniel Anderson has not taken into consideration the postcards and emails she and Save Our Green Lanes campaigners urged people to send to the council which were not used as part of the formal consultation process.

In a statement she said: "Mr

Anderson wrote in an email on September 15: 'As I have said on previous occasions, and will continue to repeat ad nauseam, all comments, questions, queries and concerns are being fed into the consultation process and will be fully considered'. So why aren't they reflected in this decision announced on Monday?"

She also believes that the consultation process was designed to be open to abuse from people with a pro-cycling agenda.

She told the Advertiser: "To fill out the consultation you did not need to provide an email address, or even your name. Anyone from anywhere could simply find some local postcodes from the internet and fill in the form. Why should the council listen to people who don't live in Green Lanes?"

She says that the next step for the protesters will be taken by leader of the Tory group on the council Terry Neville, who will call for an urgent review of the consultation results

Angry: Opponents of the Mini-Holland proposals including Helen Osman, centre, and Costas Georgiou, right, believe the views of many people have not been taken into consideration and for all other communications to be taken into consideration.

Last week Mr Neville announced that his group had withdrawn support for the plans.

In total, 60 per cent of the 1,646 people who responded to the consultation said they supported the plans, while 40 per cent said they were opposed to them.

Mr Anderson, who is championing the scheme, which, he says, will transform the borough into a safer and healthier place to live, said that the protesters had been spreading "disinformation" about the plans.

He added: "The silent majority have spoken – and shown they actually like our plans, despite a vocal campaign which has been spreading disinformation about what the proposals would actually mean for Palmers Green.

"The funding we have received from the Mayor of London gives us a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to transform our town centres, boost business, revolutionise our transport links and transform our borough into one which meets the needs of residents, businesses and people travelling through it.

"We've always said we'd listen to people who got involved in the consultation and we have, and now residents recognise this scheme is going to improve their quality of life and bring dramatic improvements to this part of the borough.

The consultation process for the Enfield Town and Southbury Road aspects of the scheme is still available to complete on <https://www.consultations.cycleenfield.co.uk/traffic-and-transportation/enfield-town/consultation>

Chris Boardman – but critics of the proposals vow to keep on fighting

'This is not about cycling, it's about what we do with our communities'

WHERE does the future of Enfield lie? Should there be a car for every resident? Free parking for all in every high street? Will the high streets of Palmers Green, Enfield Town and Winchmore Hill be revitalised by better access for cars and the asthmatics, cyclists and children can just stay out of the way of the traffic? Or, is this the moment in the borough's history when residents have chosen a different future, asks Ruth McKee

ON the same day that Enfield Council announced that more than half of the responses to its Cycle Enfield consultation broadly supported the scheme, Chris Boardman rode along Green Lanes for a chance to experience how the current road lay-out serves shops, businesses and residents.

After cycling along Green Lanes, from Palmers Green to Enfield Town, what aspects of the road currently pose a problem to those who might want to cycle the short distance rather than get in their cars?

"If I didn't ride a bike that road certainly wouldn't make me want to," said the Olympic gold medallist.

"But there is potential there to create a safe space for cycling so that we can get people who don't ride a bike at the minute to make those short journeys in their normal clothes. That would improve the quality of life for everyone."

But is imposing infrastructure change the best way to achieve this? Given the highly charged and increasingly emotive protests of shopkeepers, residents and business owners against the scheme – would it be better to let cycling develop organically alongside the car-centric policies many in the business community are advocating?

"There is no organic approach and we saw that decades ago in the Netherlands," he explained.

"Everyone assumes that it all just happened in the Netherlands – well it didn't – they were going in exactly the same direction as us and then they chose to change the way they live.

"Because what we have to remember is that this isn't about cycling – it's about what we choose to do with our communities."

As the group of riders made their way along Green Lanes, they paused briefly at the Winchmore Hill triangle – and within minutes of stopping were approached by Noel Askew, who owns interior design shop Il Falcone, in Green Lanes.

He is furious about the plans, which will see changes to the way traffic flows outside his business. Speaking to the Advertiser after confronting Mr Boardman, Mr Askew said: "Cycle lanes are a great idea, but this scheme in every single way is very ill-thought-out.

"I think it will kill this area. This road won't move. It's going to be traffic backed up forever – exhaust fumes are going to be everywhere. It's going to be absolutely awful."

On your bike: Chris Boardman rides along Green Lanes in Palmers Green on Monday to see what it's like and to promote cycling in the borough and, inset, being confronted by shop owner Noel Askew

Having seen the vocal and emotionally charged opposition to the scheme, is it really worth causing so much upset to get more people on bikes and walking?

Mr Boardman said: "It's a case of we can't afford not to do it. Enfield at the moment is spending £80million per year treating obesity and cycling is such a simple way to treat that problem."

Gesturing to the double decker buses and lorries trundling along Church Street, in Enfield Town, he added: "We've got pollution as well. Car pollution kills 29,000 people a year. Inactivity, when you roll it all together, is costing us £47billion a year in this country. London in particular has realised that if we don't do this we're screwed in 20 years' time because we need to change how people get about.

"And it just makes it a pleasanter place to be – somewhere I want my kids to live."

Tories join calls to keep green belt land free of housing developments

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TORY politicians are calling on Enfield Council to formally pledge they will not develop housing on any of the borough's green belt land.

The Conservative group spokesman on housing Edward Smith believes the timing of the council's consultation on a new Local Plan and projected figures for population growth are directly linked to relaxing building controls on the green belt.

Last week, the Advertiser reported on the local authority's plan to consult residents on ways of dealing with increased demand for housing. Alan Sitkin, the cabinet member for business and regeneration, admitted that, although it pained him as an "old eco-warrior", the council would have to look seriously at building houses on the green belt.

Mr Smith believes these moves are timed to coincide with a plan by Fairview Homes for 300 new homes on land to the south of Enfield Road.

"The green belt is sacrosanct," said Mr Smith. "Fairview Homes are positioning their proposed development as part of a way to help with school places, but by bringing hundreds of families into an area, they are not helping with the solution – they are creating even more pupils for the borough to deal with."

Mr Smith also said that building another secondary school in that part of the borough, would pull pupils away from two other schools – Highlands, in Worlds End Lane, Winchmore Hill, and Southgate, in Sussex Way – thereby leaving them underfunded and vulnerable to becoming under-subscribed.

He said that the Tory group would be tabling opposition priority business at the council meeting tonight (Wednesday) to coincide with a deputation by Enfield Road residents, who will be presenting their petition calling for an outright ban on building on the green belt in their area.

"What we should be attempting to do is looking at redeveloping brownfield sites," Mr Smith added. "We want the council to tell us where each brownfield site is in the borough and put all their resources into making those areas as attractive for developers as the green belt in the north-west of the borough is."

'Sacrosanct': Tory housing spokesman Edward Smith is calling on the council to develop brownfield, and not green belt, sites

Mum makes safety plea after David's tragic death

'More should be done to protect children from dangerous roads'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE mother of a teenage boy who died in a traffic accident has called on the government to look again at speed limits on main roads in London.

Nadia Oliveira's son, David Barcelos, 13, who lived with her in Joyce Avenue, Edmonton, died after he was involved in a collision with a bus in Fore Street on January 15 this year.

At an inquest at North London Coroner's Court, in Wood Street, Barnet, on Wednesday last week, coroner Andrew Walker recorded a verdict of death by road traffic collision.

The inquest heard from witnesses who described the moment the teenager was hit by the double decker bus as he ran from Cloyton Way to the east side of Fore Street.

Joanna Dykes was working as a doctor at North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, and was walking to work from a bus stop in Fore Street on the day of the accident, which happened at about 8.10am.

"I saw a kid running out from a sidestreet," she told the hearing.

"He was facing me, but I could see a bus behind him.

"I thought at the speed he was running and the speed the bus was travelling at they were going to collide.

"It looked like he saw the bus coming and took two big jumps to get out of the way, but he wasn't able to and he was pulled underneath the bus,"

The driver of the bus Sandra Thomas also gave evidence to the inquest.

She described how she had been starting to slow down as she travelled north along Fore Street as she knew there was another bus stop coming up.

"I saw this child coming out of a side-street," she said.

"I thought please stop, I then pulled the bus to the right to try and avoid hitting him. I was trying to stop the bus and had slammed on the brakes."

Mrs Oliveira and David's father Emmanuel Barcelos were given the opportunity to ask questions and she asked the driver: "Why did you travel on for so many metres after you hit him if you were stopping?"

Ms Thomas replied: "The bus does not just stop right away after you apply the brakes," adding that a double decker takes a longer time to come to a complete stop than a car.

"I remember thinking please stop, I was blowing my horn and I was on the footbrakes, I was pulling the bus to the right to avoid him," she added.

The inquest heard that David died as a result of severe head and chest injuries.

PC Adrian Van Lancker, who investigated the accident, told the coroner that the bus had been travelling at 29mph at the time of the collision.

Mrs Oliveira was given the opportunity to question the PC and she asked: "How could a low speed like 29 miles per hour kill a child?"

"The bus was travelling along a road with so many schools on it with so many children. It does not make sense to me that buses are allowed to travel at this speed."

PC Van Lancker replied: "It is a wide road that has a high volume of traffic and a lower speed limit would be unmanageable."

He explained that one of the reasons buses can kill when travelling within the speed limit is because they are "flat-fronted vehicles" and the full force of the impact is felt by the pedestrian, unlike in a collision with a car where a pedestrian might be pushed over the top of the car or out of the way.

Speaking after the coroner's ruling, Mrs Oliveira said that more should be done to protect children from the dangers of busy roads.

"We are not here to blame anyone, but you can see if this speed can kill someone the government should think about doing something to make the place safer," she said.

"There are lots of accidents in London – today it is my son, tomorrow it will be another's child. It's very sad. David was so full of life – he enjoyed living. It is a very difficult loss, losing my son, and I am sure that other families would feel the same.

"No one wants to lose their own child, so more should be done to protect children from these dangerous roads."

'So full of life': David Barcelos died after colliding with a bus in Fore Street, Edmonton, in January Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps.

Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Behind bars: Arsid John, right, and Mohamed Mohamed, far right, were jailed for a total of 17 years for the incident, subjecting a family to a "terrifying ordeal" during the course of a burglary at an address in Edmonton

Pair who attacked family during raid on home are jailed

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TWO men have been jailed after subjecting a family to a "terrifying ordeal" as they tried to burgle their Edmonton home earlier this year.

Arsid John, 25, of Surr Street, Holloway and Mohamed Mohamed, 22, of no fixed abode, were jailed for a total of 17 years at Wood Green Crown Court for launching an attack on the family in the course of a violent burglary.

The duo broke into the home in Sweet Briar Walk, near Pymmes Park, in the early hours of Friday, June 27.

They woke the family and demanded money. In the course of the attack, a 44-year-old man was slashed on the arm by John, who was armed with a knife, and a 20-year-old man was pistol-whipped by Mohammed.

Both victims required hospital treatment for their injuries.

As the burglars made off, one of the victims managed to call the police and was able to remember part of the registration plate from their getaway vehicle.

They were then stopped by police, who searched the car and found a pair of blood-stained gloves that proved to have the victim's DNA on them.

John pleaded guilty to aggravated burglary, aggravated bodily harm, grievous bodily harm and possession of an imitation firearm and was sentenced to seven years and six months in prison.

Mohamed was found guilty of aggravated burglary and was sentenced to nine years and six months imprisonment.

Detective Constable Tony Thrussell, of Enfield CID, who led the investigation, said: "This was a terrifying ordeal for the victims, who were awakened by John and Mohamed demanding money while attacking them."

"I would like to praise their bravery in supporting the prosecution. The sentences reflect the serious nature of the assault."

Police investigate after gun is fired by the River Lea

DETECTIVES are investigating after a gun was fired near the River Lea.

A weapon was discovered and police sniffer dogs combed the area at a car park at Swan and Pike Road, in Enfield Lock, on the edge of the Lea Valley Park, after the shot was fired on Monday evening last week.

Detectives from the Trident and Area Crime Command unit are investigating the incident and there have been no arrests or details of anyone being injured by the incident to date.

Anyone with information should contact police on 101 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Pupils launch a plea for world peace

PUPILS at a Southgate school did their bit to spread world peace on Friday with a special balloon release.

A dozen helium-filled balloons with peace pledges from each class at West Grove primary school, in Chase Road, floated skywards to coincide with the 70th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Pupils had taken part in a variety of peace-related learning activities, including conducting their own research into the subject, drawing posters and creating poems or raps, as well as making individual peace pledges such as "I will be friendlier to my brother," and "I will be more kind to others".

Each class also came up with its own peace vows and slogans, which were attached to the balloons, such as "We pledge to be more positive." and "Don't bully, respect others".

Up, up and away: West Grove pupils launch their balloons

As the classmates gathered in the playground, the balloons were released simultaneously, climbing swiftly to the clouds until they were just a tiny speck in the distance. "The children really enjoyed learning about peace and how they could apply it to becoming ambassadors for peace themselves," said teacher Yzelle Casey. "It truly was an uplifting day."

Haunting tale gets a movie makeover

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

AN ordinary street in the borough is being used as a stand-in for another road which was the location of the infamous Enfield hauntings.

Warner Brothers is shooting its own version of the story, focusing on the role of real life American paranormal investigators Ed and Lorraine Warren – and Graeme Road, in Enfield Town, is doubling up as Green Street, in Enfield Highway.

The husband and wife headed over the Atlantic when they heard about the supposed poltergeist hauntings which plagued a mother and her four children for 18 months in the 1970s.

The couple are played by Vera Farmiga, who was nominated for an Oscar for her role in Up In The Air with George Clooney, and Patrick Wilson, star of the Insidious horror movies.

The Conjuring 2: The Enfield Poltergeist is directed by James Wan, whose first Conjuring movie is the second-highest grossing original horror movie to date, behind only The Exorcist.

Filming is due to take place in Enfield this month and road closure orders have been approved so cameramen can work

Who ya gonna call?: Ghostbusters Ed and Lorraine Warren (Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson) in a scene from the forthcoming film The Conjuring 2: The Enfield Poltergeist unobstructed in Graeme Road.

Film company Warner Brothers said: "The production of The Conjuring 2 will be filming in the Enfield area for a fortnight from next week."

The abnormal goings-on at an ordinary Enfield council house hit the headlines in 1977 after an 11-year-old girl Janet Hodgson and her sister Margaret, 13, appeared to become the focus of paranormal attention.

Disturbances at the family home included objects being thrown about, levitating furniture and untraceable voices.

The family home was investigated by a series of paranormal investigators.

These included Maurice Grosse, of the Society for Psychical Research, who was played by Timothy Spall in a three-part drama screened by Sky TV earlier this year.

The Warrens also visited the family home to try and understand what had been going on.

Ed Warren spoke about the case in 1978 and said: "You couldn't record the dangerous, threatening atmosphere inside that little house. But you could film the levitations, teleportations and dematerialisations of objects that were happening there."

He claimed that "inhuman spirit phenomena were in progress" in the Hodgson home.

AIR pollution has been in the news and about time, too. It kills more than 9,000 Londoners every year – a staggering number for something that little is being done about.

A report has calculated that for every week you live in London you lose 90 minutes of life – and the problems don't stop at deaths. Asthmatic children, once a rarity, are now commonplace.

But most effort seems to go into evading the problem rather than solving it, from gluing the pollution to the road, not to save lives but to keep it away from monitoring equipment, to computer cheating of monitoring tests. Even as that scandal broke, car manufacturers were lobbying successfully to emasculate new EU emissions standards. The establishment does love its corporate lobbyists.

I can feel sympathy with drivers who bought diesel cars for environmental reasons – only to find a few years later that science has caught up with them and diesels are now villains rather than heroes. Diesel cars produce noxious particulates, so they have to go, and in the long run petrol-driven ones, too.

We need better and cheaper public transport and more encouragement for cyclists and pedestrians. Reducing air pollution is one of the selling points of the Cycle Enfield proposals, although usually ignored by its opponents. We can learn, too, from Paris, which has just had its first car-free day and found pollution levels dropped by up to 40 per cent.

We were not involved in CCG's decision

IN the article "Patients will not travel, warns GP" (Advertiser, November 4) the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group yet again says the controversial two surgery extra appointment pilot service "has been developed and designed with GP networks representing all the practices across the borough".

I must make it absolutely clear that this is not the case.

Our GP network, representing 50 per cent of Enfield practices, was not involved in the design of this pilot scheme and we were always opposed to the method of organisation.

In the end the CCG implemented the scheme quite without our agreement.

For its own reasons the CCG insists on spreading this fiction, a fiction easily demonstrated by minutes of the meetings we did have with the CCG.

It's not acceptable to target disabled people

I WAS pleased to read that the council has decided to publicise its plans to change the charging mechanisms for adult social care transport services.

Unfortunately, the article ("Views sought as council prepares to wield the axe", Advertiser, November 4) failed to mention that the consultation ended yesterday (November 10) and that the final policy will go before cabinet next Wednesday (November 18). In addition, it did not mention that proposed cuts will not only affect older people. They will also have a massive effect on people with severe physical and learning disabilities and their carers.

I am the mother of a severely disabled man. I help to run support groups for carers of adults with learning disabilities. We have been involved with this consultation for several months and have encouraged carers to make their views known. Unfortunately, the majority of those for whom we care are not able to do this for themselves. We have attended a number of consultation meetings, which have been extremely emotional and angry – so cruel, considering the massive savings delivered by unpaid family carers.

Adult social care law is complex, particularly in the light of the 2014 Care Act, which came into force in April 2015. The local authority has many statutory duties, particularly in the areas of assessing and meeting needs and in charging. We believe that the proposals in the council's policy regarding the use of mobility benefits could well be in breach of these duties.

We understand that cuts in government grants to local authorities have given rise to unpalatable choices. We know every Enfield resident must face the prospect of cuts to services and increases in charges and taxes. Nevertheless, it cannot be acceptable to target this single dreadfully disadvantaged group with such huge cuts to deliver £900k savings.

Wendy Berry,
Seaford Road,

We can't afford to stand still

LAST week it was estimated that London's population could hit 11 million by 2039. News that our city is booming will come as little surprise to anyone who lives, works or travels in the capital.

However, this latest estimate should focus the minds of those planning for London's future. With this level of population growth on the cards, it's clear there is only so far the government's mantra of "doing more for less" can go.

Rapid population growth means that the impact of cuts in spending will be felt more deeply. We can already see services creaking under the strain, from overcrowded Tubes and buses, to an ambulance service and A&Es struggling to cope with growing patient numbers.

London cannot afford to stand still. By the time vital projects like Crossrail are completed we will be well on the way to needing Crossrail 2, and even 3, to keep up with growing demand.

And it's not just about infrastructure. With size come unique challenges and needs. To address these we need to see more decision-making and funding devolved to City Hall and the boroughs.

This freedom would give us the opportunity to mould our services to meet the specific needs of the people who live and work here, instead of sticking with national policies which may not work for local people.

Joanne McCartney
London Assembly Member for Enfield and Haringey

Was purpose to mislead us?

I AM grateful for your excellent coverage of Enfield Council's plans for the "future" of the Local Studies Centre and Museum and was interested to read that Ayfer Orhan was satisfied that the consultation document on the matter was "fit for purpose" ("Campaigners may make legal bid to preserve museum", Advertiser, November 4).

I can only presume that the purpose was to mislead and misinform the public of the council's intentions for the future of these departments.

The document was full of statements about what the council proposed to do to enhance the service without any mention of its plan to decimate both services by cutting staff, reducing opening hours, carrying out only selective digitisation of the archives and depriving the museum of the vast majority of its display space.

If someone was going to a medical consultation, they would want to give all the information to their doctor in order that he/she may have an informed opinion.

I look forward to the next council elections when the general public will get the chance to say whether they feel that Councillor Orhan and her colleagues are "fit for purpose".

Three on shortlist for Meridian Water

Major development: Meridian Water will provide thousands of homes and jobs

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THREE bidders are in the running to build the multi-million-pound Meridian Water development in Edmonton.

Barratt and Segro, Berkeley Homes and Pacific Premium Developer & Willmott Dixon have made the shortlist for the scheme, which will provide 8,000 new homes by 2035.

The Meridian Water site is an 85-hectare area of land, part of which had to be decontaminated after British Gas used the site for a gas silo.

As well as being charged with building the thousands of homes, the developer who wins the contract will be expected to help the local authority in creating 3,000 new jobs on the site by 2035.

The winner of the contract will be announced by Enfield Council early next year.

Cabinet member for business and regeneration Alan Sitkin welcomed the decision to name the shortlist and said: "We need a world-class partner to help us deliver a world-class development.

Meridian Water will transform our borough and play a significant role in driving the growth in north London as a whole.

"I am delighted to see this shortlist contains developers of international renown and I am really excited about who our successful partner is going to be. They will be instrumental in helping us deliver this ambitious scheme to create thousands of homes and jobs in a superb water-front environment".

Cabinet member for housing Ahmet Oyken, who has repeatedly cited the need for more social and affordable housing options in the borough, said: "Meridian Water will provide thousands of much-needed homes in a fantastic setting and will play a significant role in tackling the shortage of family accommodation in our borough.

"This is an ambitious, innovative and exciting project which will make a huge difference to the lives of thousands of families in Enfield. It demonstrates the council's commitment to large-scale regeneration schemes which provide a tangible benefit to both individuals and the wider community."

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

All for one and one for all!

By Julia Gregory

A BAND of keen musicians made a fashion statement by wearing onesies in aid of charity during its weekly rehearsals.

Thirty members of the Enfield Chase branch of North London Brass Network swapped their usual civvies for onesies or pyjamas at rehearsals at Lancaster Road United Reformed Church to raise money for the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, which supports people with type 1 diabetes.

The band is supporting JDRF as its charity of the year and raised £300 at the rehearsal ahead of World Diabetes Day this Saturday.

Martyn Stogden, the founder and director of North London Brass Network, said: "Type 1 diabetes is a condition that affects some of our members and their families directly.

"We are delighted to be working with JDRF as our 2016 charity of the year to ensure that more people Understand the condition, as well as to raise funds for vital research."

He said the band, for musicians of all ages, was planning more events to raise money for the charity over the next year.

Band members turned up in a range of colourful and extravagant onesies during the rehearsal.

It has been a busy time for the band, which played at Waterloo station as part of the London-wide fundraising day for the Royal British Legion.

The band also played at Manchester City's match against Norwich City after contacting major clubs, including Spurs and Arsenal, to offer its services.

Mr Stogden said City were the only club to respond and the band enjoyed entertaining fans with the club's song Blue Moon.

The band was founded in Enfield in 2010 and Mr Stogden said it would love to perform at matches for Spurs or Arsenal.

The musicians have already performed at Enfield Town matches.

The band's next concert is at Christ Church, in Chase Side, Enfield, on Wednesday, December 9, starting at 8pm.

Enfield Chase will be joined by the City of London branch of North London Brass and the programme will include film music and Abba tunes.

Parents' plea for new lollipop lady at school

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

WORRIED parents are calling for their school's long-serving lollipop lady to be replaced following her retirement along with stricter parking controls to prevent a child being hurt or killed in a serious accident.

More than 400 people have signed a petition in which they "urgently request a replacement lollipop lady or man, and/or a Pelican crossing, parking/road management," following the retirement after 26 years of lollipop lady Denise Vallance at Raglan Primary School, in Bush Hill Park.

Barbara Turner, who helped organise the petition, said: "Wellington Road is extremely busy, not only used by the 192 bus but often when traffic problems or roadworks occur on the A10, by cars or vans using it as a short cut."

She added: "In the last few weeks we have already seen an increase in incidents, such as a child running straight out into the road."

She said some people also drop their children in the road on zig zag lines where they are not supposed to park.

"Parking on double yellow lines has also increased, causing a bottleneck and making it very difficult to safely cross the road," she said. "It is only a matter of time before someone is seriously injured or killed."

Road safety petition: Parents and children outside Raglan School

The Raglan School Association has also launched an online petition calling for action to be taken to improve road safety near the infant and junior schools.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for the environment Daniel Anderson said: "We are currently reviewing arrangements at this crossing following the retirement of the existing lollipop person."

"Road safety continues to be our priority, but we need to ensure that our resources are directed as effectively as possible, particularly as council budgets are coming under increasing pressure. Wellington Road, the main road next to Raglan, already benefits from a school-time 20mph speed limit, but we will also investigate the additional measures being requested."

Ward councillor Erin Celebi said: "I have had a lot of concerns about this situation. I think something should be done."

She said the school lollipop lady had done an excellent job and called for her to be replaced.

Tourist dies after rock slide tragedy

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN from Enfield plunged to his death following a rock slide as he posed for holiday snaps in a picturesque beauty spot in Bulgaria.

Although he has not been formally identified, the man has been named locally as businessman and father-of two Ian Anthony Johnson, 57, of Gentlemans Row.

According to reports from Bulgaria, he fell to his death last Thursday while taking pictures near the waterfall tourist attraction in the north of the country, near the village of Krushuna.

He died alongside his friend Katia Pavlova, a mum-of-two, who was also from north London, after 7,000 cubic feet of rock came tumbling from the side of a gorge, knocking the two from the rope bridge they were standing on into the valley below.

Another friend who was with them managed to escape from the rock slide and ran for help. After a 48-hour rescue operation, their bodies were found on Sunday.

Speaking to local media and quoted in The Daily Mail, Viktor Dzhonev, who owns a guest house near the waterfall, said: "The man and woman were under the cliffs."

"Another woman was taking a picture of them with a camera when it happened. A small piece of rock hit her, but she got away. The couple were buried."

"It was perfect weather," he added. "There was no rain, it was sunny all day. I don't have an idea why it happened."

"Around three years ago there was another fall when another cliff came down."

Warehouse gutted

MORE than 100 firefighters battled a blaze for hours while at least 30 people were evacuated from their homes in Edmonton on Friday night.

Flames tore through a clothing warehouse at the corner of Pretoria Road and Shaftesbury Road just before 10pm.

The fire was brought under control by 2.20am as 120 firefighters battled the flames for more than four hours. The blaze gutted a single-storey warehouse and a smaller building beside it. The firefighters prevented the flames from spreading to nearby homes.

Station manager Bill Dunn, who was at the scene, said: "When they arrived, our crews faced a large, well-developed fire and they worked incredibly hard in what were extremely challenging conditions to successfully prevent it from spreading to two neighbouring warehouses."

"About 30 people had to be evacuated from homes in the nearby area during the initial stages of the fire as a precaution."

Fire crews remained at the scene until Saturday morning to make sure the blaze was completely extinguished.

Fitting tribute: Arctic convoys veteran Frederick Thomson, who was presented with a bravery medal last year, is pictured at the memorial outside Enfield Civic Centre

Hands across the water

British and Russian navies join forces for Arctic convoy tribute

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

THE British and Russian navies will unite in paying tribute to servicemen who served on the convoys which braved perilous journeys to carry vital supplies during World War II.

Russian naval attaché Captain Oleg Kornienko will join Lieutenant Colonel Mark Van Der Bergh, from the Royal Navy, in making speeches at a special service in Enfield on Saturday.

They will gather at the granite Arctic Memorial outside the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, to mark the 70th anniversary of the last of the Arctic convoys.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill described the risky trip taken by the convoys as "the worst journey in the world" as they risked attack from German submarines and warships as well as from the – with icy cold seas awaiting if they took to the water to escape if they survived bombings.

The toll included 85 merchant ships and 16 warships.

The Russian government struck medals in 1944 for sailors who survived the convoys, which took food, medical supplies and weapons from Britain, America and Canada to northern ports in the Soviet Union, including Archangel and Murmansk.

The medals, which have been presented of late, include one to former Enfield resident, the late Frederick Thomson, who was 93 when he received his award last year.

Enfield's cabinet member for communities Yasemin Brett said: "Those who served on the Arctic convoys are often the forgotten heroes, but their contribution was vital to the war effort.

"More than four million tonnes of supplies were delivered to the Russians.

"As well as tanks and aircraft, these included vital items such as trucks, telephone wire, railway engines and boots."

Saturday's service starts at 2.45pm and will be led by the vicar of St Andrew's Church, in Enfield Town, the Reverend Dr Steve Griffiths.

Man jailed for knife-point robbery

A MAN who held a knife to another man's throat before robbing him in the street has been jailed for five years.

Kareem Miller, 22, from Catford, south-east London, arranged to meet his 33-year-old victim in Turkey Street, Enfield, in July this year after the man had advertised a mini Segway scooter for sale via the Gumtree website.

A police spokesman said: "They met and when the man showed Miller the Segway in his car, Miller held a knife to the victim's throat and threatened him before making off with the mini Segway."

Jailed: Kareem Miller

Miller was sentenced at Blackfriars Crown Court on Wednesday last week after pleading guilty to three counts of robbery and possession of a pointed or bladed article. One of the other robberies was in Blackstock Road, Finsbury Park, from a man who was also advertising a mini Segway on the Gumtree site. His other victim was an 18-year-old youth who had his bike stolen at knife-point by Miller in Dufferin Street, in the City of London.

Acting Detective Sergeant Victoria Teagle said: "The Met will go above and beyond to catch the perpetrators of knife crime and the courts will jail those responsible for such serious offences against innocent victims."

It takes two to tango as pupils star in TV show

A SPOT on a spin-off show from TV's popular Strictly Come Dancing has made pupils at an Edmonton school "star turns".

Youngsters at Wilbury Primary School, in Wilbury Way, melted the hearts of the nation's viewers when they appeared as on-screen junior judges on It Takes Two, the weekday BBC2 sister show to Strictly presented by Zoe Ball.

Pupils at different primary schools across the country are chosen each week to give their opinions on the Saturday and Sunday night performances of the celebrity contestants and their professional dance partners.

A film crew visits schools and show clips of the contestants to two pupils at a time, recording the youngsters' chatter and their often unintentionally amusing comments.

After several of the Wilbury children appeared as junior judges on the show early last month they were so well received they were invited back by popular demand and the film crew returned to the school to record their observations on the Halloween-themed show.

"It really is a privilege to be selected for such a popular show and we are all very proud of our children who took to appearing in front of the camera like ducks to water," said headteacher Kate Turnpenney.

"Their hilarious comments went down a storm with the audience after their first appearance and apparently Twitter went crazy with postings asking the BBC to bring them back," she added.

Junior judges: Six-year-olds Ronan Kiyangi and Ruya Nevzat appeared on TV after being filmed at Wilbury Primary School

At the Alice Nursery we pride ourselves on offering a first-rate pre-prep experience, led by our Nursery Manager (a fully trained and experienced teacher) and her specialist Early Years Trained staff. Girls flourish in an atmosphere of calm excitement and purposeful engagement as they discover the world around them through a variety of carefully planned activities linked to a weekly theme. As soon as they are ready to begin to read they are encouraged to do so, being taught by fully-trained staff with a working knowledge of education beyond Nursery.

The girls have experienced a host of fun-filled trips and events that have kept them busy throughout this academic year. Annual highlights included the Nursery Nativity, Sports Day, trip to Willows Farm and Paradise Wildlife Park, and visits from Uncle Vic and his 'mini beasts' and Edmonton Fire Brigade.

Whilst the Alice Nursery is currently full there are some vacancies for the next academic year. Girls may join after their third birthday and families are welcome to visit during our regular Wednesday Open Mornings. However, please be aware that the colourful and welcoming environment of the nursery often means that prospective parents - and especially their daughters - often don't want to leave!

A tale of enchantment

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

FAIRYTALES collide in a contemporary twist on "happy ever after" in the musical Into the Woods at Enfield's Dugdale Centre.

An enchanted wood and almost every fairy-tale character you can think of is featured in Finchley and Friern Barnet Operatic Society's production of Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine's Brothers Grimm-inspired musical, which continues a week-long run at the theatre until Saturday.

Fairy tale characters from Little Red Riding Hood, Jack and the Beanstalk, to Rapunzel, Cinderella and others too numerous to mention, are linked by an intertwining plot which centres on a childless baker and his wife and their desire to start a family.

The barren couple discover a witch has put a curse on them and they set out to get her to lift it, journeying into the shadowy wood where they meet the other storybook characters along the way.

"It's exciting with great characters we are all familiar with and beautiful and enchanting music," said Chris Henry, the operatic society's publicity officer. "It teaches us life lessons about how adversity can help you grow and become stronger and how family are always there to support you."

The amateur operatic society, formed back in 1922, has relocated to the Dugdale, in London Road, having spent a nomadic last few years with spells at the Intimate Theatre, in Palmers Green, and before that at Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton.

Into the Woods is its debut production at the Dugdale and was chosen because of the "buzz" created by the box office success of Disney's film adaptation, released last year.

"The Dugdale is a great venue and we are already reaping the benefits commercially with ticket sales, which have gone extremely well. At the Intimate we were limited to just Wednesday to Saturday runs," Chris added.

The move has presented one unexpected challenge, however – the cast have had to learn for the first time to perform to an audience on three sides as the show is being staged "in the round".

Biting into the Apple Corps

STEVE JOBS (15, 122 mins)

DANNY Boyle's bravura portrait of the revered Apple Inc co-founder is neither a traditional biopic nor a gushing hagiography.

Steve Jobs is an audacious character study in three acts that paints its subject as an egomaniac, a visionary and a neglectful father with the same meticulous brushstrokes.

Scriptwriter Aaron Sorkin, who collected an Academy Award for The Social Network, deserves to add another golden statuette to the mantelpiece for his exemplary work here.

He explores violently clashing facets of Jobs' personality through the prism of three key product launches in 1984, 1988 and 1998 respectively.

Each chapter unfolds at a breathless pace, established by Sorkin's rapid-fire dialogue, and cinematographer Alvin Kuchler cleverly conjures the mood by shooting on different film stocks – 16mm, 35mm and digital.

Michael Fassbender and Kate Winslet are mesmerising as the titular maven and his right-hand woman, who take markedly different approaches to people management.

In the first section, Steve (Fassbender) prepares to launch the first Macintosh flanked by marketing executive Joanna Hoffman (Winslet), one of the few people who tolerates his outbursts.

When the computer's voice function glitches, Steve verbally abuses development team leader Andy Hertzfeld (Michael Stuhlbarg).

"We blow this and IBM will own the next 50 years like a Batman villain!" seethes Jobs.

Michael Fassbender as Steve Jobs

Apple CEO John Sculley (Jeff Daniels) watches from the wings, bearing witness to the birth of a monster.

In the second chapter, set four years later, Steve continues to clash with his first girlfriend Chrisann Brennan (Katherine Waterston), who claims that he is the father of her daughter.

"Things don't become so because you say so," she snaps as Jobs prepares to launch The Cube, which he knows will be "the biggest single failure in the history of personal computing".

Bitter defeat turns into sweet personal triumph in the final act as Steve returns to the Apple fold, ousts Sculley from his perch and prepares to dazzle the world with the iMac.

Rivalries simmer and co-founder Steve Wozniak (Seth Rogen) reminds Jobs that being in charge doesn't come at the expense of good manners.

"It's not binary – you can be decent and gifted at the same time," laments Wozniak.

Steve Jobs is another artistic triumph for Boyle, who stormed the 2008 Academy Awards with Slumdog Millionaire.

His camera glides along corridors as the protagonist barks orders, demanding nothing less than perfection.

Excellence behind the camera would mean nothing without pyrotechnics on screen and Fassbender lights the fuse on his own Oscar chances with a scintillating portrayal of Jobs, who likens himself to a conductor.

"Musicians play their instruments. I play the orchestra," he coolly tells his inner circle.

Glimpsed through Boyle's unflinching and sometimes unflattering lens, Jobs played his orchestra until their fingers bled while he barely broke sweat.

Punching above its weight

By Matt Kimberley

NISSAN has taken the flak directed at the first Juke Nismo on its chin – and rather than denying any fault, the Japanese firm has got stuck in to make its smallest performance car better.

The original was a bit of a lame duck compared to true hot hatches, but it wasn't without talent under the surface.

The Juke Nismo RS is firmer, more composed and more powerful. There's less body roll and more straight-line urge, and it even looks better than before.

Suddenly, this left-field hot hatch pretender looks a lot more serious, like a boxer who took a first-round beating but has come back with fire in his belly.

If you don't like red detailing, you're in the wrong place. You'll find it on the outside, most obviously on the front bumper, and throughout the cabin, including on the chunky seats.

Those bucket-style Recaro chairs are a serious statement of intent, giving the flagship Juke more weight to argue with.

If you don't like the Juke's looks, this could be the model to make you think twice.

Those aggressive seats don't do you any favours when you try to slide in and end up getting the tall side bolster stuck between your legs (or worse), so you have to adapt your entry technique. There's a modest boot that's big enough for the young and the child-free. The cabin is spacious enough in the front but a bit cramped at the back.

The motorbike fuel tank-inspired centre console is an acquired taste, but there's no arguing in favour of the rubbish and dated-looking (if novel) torque/boost/eco rating readouts.

What you'll enjoy more is the Juke's renewed sense of purpose. It pulls hard, with an oh-so-slightly improved soundtrack against the old one, but it also stands up to scrutiny in the corners.

It changes direction with the fast reflexes that could only belong to a short-wheelbase car. Quick steering and a grippy Alcantara wheel mean you're never scrabbling for extra lock and the car stays impressively flat even when you corner like it's 1999.

There was never a shortage of cohesion in the Juke Nismo, but the RS brings noticeable extra bite at the front end and an ability to keep impressing you even when you keep pushing it harder.

The front-wheel drive version now comes with a limited-slip differential, which makes a huge difference. The four-wheel drive version is automatic-only, which does take an edge off the experience.

At £21,995, the Nismo RS is not bad value at all depending on your perspective.

On the one hand, it's the same price as the bog-standard, entry-level, seven-seat Nissan X-Trail, but on the other it's vastly cheaper than other similarly-equipped hot hatches.

For its size, the hot Juke punches well above its weight, which will be part of the appeal.

There's some debate among the motoring media as to whether buyers of this car will come from the general hot hatch fan club, or from people who just love the way the Juke looks and want the best version on their drives.

What's in no doubt is that the RS now has enough talent to swim with the bigger fish around it.

And, of course, this is a car that offers a unique crossover kick in a purely hatchback market.

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

We'll give you the best of both worlds - every week, all week!

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at www.enfield-today.co.uk

KANE'S DELIGHT AT DERBY GOAL

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HARRY KANE admitted that he had been desperate to score at the Emirates Stadium after his goal helped Tottenham Hotspur to secure a 1-1 draw in Sunday's north London derby at Arsenal.

Spurs dominated for long spells and Kane's assured finish gave them a deserved 1-0 lead at half-time, but the hosts hit back in the second period and Kieran Gibbs equalised to ensure that the points were shared.

"I was absolutely buzzing with the goal," he said. "It was my first time playing at the Emirates and I wanted to score so badly and wanted to win."

"We played so well and had chances to go 2-0 up so we're disappointed we didn't get the win in the end, but perhaps in a couple of days when the dust settles we'll probably say it's a good point."

"We've had a tough week and I thought we played well. It's just the way football goes. We're also undefeated since the first game of the season, which is great. As I said, I was absolutely buzzing with the goal and I'll keep working hard and keep trying to do my best for the team."

The draw means that fifth-placed Spurs still have the longest unbeaten run in the Premier League, and Kane believes that the side have shown that they are capable of competing with any team in the division.

"We've shown that we can be up there with the big teams," he said. "We probably deserved to win against Liverpool, we beat Manchester City and maybe deserved to win at Arsenal as well."

"We're not just drawing where we're hanging on, we're drawing where we're playing well and there are chances we could be winning these games."

"We've just got to keep doing what we're doing – there are lots of games still left to play. We're now into the international break and when we come back it's two more London derbies [against West Ham United and Chelsea]."

"There's still a long way to go and we're not going to come out and say that we're title contenders, but we've just got to keep doing what we're doing. We're in a great position at the moment and we've played a lot of tough teams – but there's still a long way to go."

Kane added: "At this level you've got to maintain it throughout the whole season. We've done well in the past but then our form has dipped in the new year, maybe towards the end of the season, so it's just about doing it as much as possible over the Christmas break and then into the new year and we'll see where it takes us."

"Obviously Chelsea are not playing very well at the moment but I wouldn't write them off. They were champions for a reason last season."

"We've just got to concentrate on ourselves and try not to think about the teams around us. We're playing very well, we've got great belief and we've just got to keep trying to move up that table."

While Kane hit the headlines with his goal, it was Dele Alli who was named man of the match following an outstanding display in midfield.

And the young England international revealed that he had thoroughly enjoyed his first experience of playing in a north London derby in the league.

"It's everything it's made out to be – a great game in a great atmosphere," he said. "We dominated the majority of the game and kept the ball in their third of the pitch. We just needed the second goal to kill the game off, but it didn't come and unfortunately they scored."

"It was a great opportunity to go to Arsenal and win, so when you play as well as we did you are bound to be disappointed not to come away with all three points."

"We just have to focus on the next game now. The lads are in really good form, everyone is playing well and we're all helping each other out, which I think is really important."

"We have to keep that feeling, maintain the team spirit and that will keep our confidence high."

Spurs ace Dier reveals pride at getting first call-up to senior England squad

ERIC DIER has revealed his pride after receiving his first call-up to the senior England squad.

The young Tottenham Hotspur star has been a revelation since switching from central defence to a holding midfield role at the start of this season, and he was rewarded for his efforts on Thursday when he was named in the England squad for the forthcoming friendlies against Spain and France.

And Dier, who has only missed one match – through suspension – this season, has admitted that he is surprised at the rapid progress he has made.

"If you would have told me when I was on holiday this summer that this was going to happen I wouldn't have believed you," he said. "I'm really happy and thankful to the gaffer for playing me in this position, trusting me and believing in me."

"It's a proud moment for me and my family and something I've dreamed of since I was a kid. I'm really pleased."

"It's always nice to go on international duty with other players from your club, that makes it easier as well."

"I know some of the lads from younger age groups as well so it will be good, I'm looking forward to it. I'll go there, do my best and if I get a chance, hopefully I'll take it."

And Spurs head coach Mauricio Pochettino insists that Dier's England call-up is entirely merited – hailing the impact that the 21-year-old has made during the current campaign.

"I'm very pleased for him, he deserves it," Pochettino said. "His team-mates and everyone at the club congratulate him because from the beginning of the season he's showed a fantastic character and had some fantastic performances."

"It was tough from the beginning but it was important that he believed he could play in midfield. The mentality he has is to always help the team and he is a fantastic professional. He's one of the players who can be a great example to all."
